

More than 4,000 professional art therapists are part of the American Art Therapy national network. Art therapists are healthcare professionals who provide necessary health services to a growing number of people receiving care in a variety of health care settings and through private practice. An art therapist holds a master's degree or above in art therapy and/or a related health field. They work in hospitals, clinics, K-12 schools, educational institutions, community programs and other settings to help people address health and well being.

To find an art therapist near you simply search through this document. Members are listed alphabetically, sorted by State, City and Name. International listings are located at the end of the document. If you are unable to find an art therapist through this on-line locator, please go to: <http://therapists.find-a-therapist.com/Directory/Art-Therapist.aspx> or contact your local Chapter of the American Art Therapy Association.

Description of Practice	Art Therapy in Orange County, CA: Children, families, and adults throughout Orange County benefit from art therapy as a non-threatening form of counseling. Absolutely no art experience or ability is needed. Art therapy is a form of psychotherapy that uses art supplies, images and the creative process as additional tools to express thoughts & feelings and to resolve conflicts and confusions. You and I will work together to create goals that focus on your specific needs. Needs often addressed include reducing behavior problems, fears & anxiety, overcoming large and small traumas, improving social skills & self awareness, and lowering stress. I have additional expertise in the area of adoption and foster care.

Sara facilitates a rejuvenative process through a resource-based therapeutic approach. Sara helps her clients identify and shape the resources that an individual, couple or family have already. Together, we are able to re-do a problem. To turn a problem, into a challenge, and to then turn that challenge into an accomplishment. Sara is patient and dedicated to her client’s well being. Sara brings a multitude of resources with her into your sessions. As a clinical counselor I know the tools of talk therapy, and as an art therapist I have the tools necessary for finding other ways to get to the heart of the matter when words either get in the way or the words just are not there. Sometimes the healing process can be rocky as it may require the person to step into an unknown way of being or behaving, and I am there with the confidence and faith that therapy works and that healing is possible. Description of Practice	Mary Pellicci Hamilton is a psychotherapist specializing in childhood disorders and family issues. Mary Hamilton has been practicing art therapy for over ten years. Her clinical focus has mainly involved providing clinical treatment and assessments for childhood disorders and family issues including divorce adjustment, loss, and anxiety disorders. In her view, art therapy provides children with a therapeutic method of self-expression and discovery. Mary Hamilton stated, "Art has a tremendous healing power and allows for true self-expression." This allows children to gain insight into their own behaviors and feelings through the creative therapies including interventions in art therapy and play therapy. Children create and experiment with art materials in a safe and contained therapeutic environment using metaphoric play to process feelings. In addition to art therapy, Ms. Hamilton subscribes to additional evidence based treatments. Mary Hamilton holds a Master's of Science in Art Therapy and Counseling and is a Licensed Professional Counselor and Registered Art Therapist. Her education included formal study in Turin, Italy.

Description of Practice	Journeys through Art Therapy uses Art Therapy, as well as some talk therapy and play therapy, to help adults, children, adolescents, families, and groups who are in distress from trauma, grief, mental health conditions, or troubling life issues. At Journeys, the healing process starts with deep and respectful listening to/looking at one's story, then moves toward discovering answers through one's own innate wisdom and creativity. The client is encouraged to integrate body, soul, mind, and spirit into therapy for wholeness and personal growth. The emphasis is on finding hope for a better and more fulfilling life, then implementing that hope in concrete, life-enhancing ways.

Description of Practice	I believe in the power of art making to provide healing,insight and awareness. I am passionate about engaging and empowering others to find their creative voice. I believe that we all are creative and by connecting with our intuition and creativity we are able to understand and know ourselves deeply. I am a board certified, registered art therapist and a licensed clinical professional counselor in the state of Illinois. I currently am an adjunct professor in the art therapy department at Adler School of Professional Psychology and am the President of the Illinois Art Therapy Association. In my practice, I provide counseling, consultation, supervision and education. A typical counseling session involves you identifying an area you would like to work on and together we discuss some ways you can approach the situation. I may ask you to create something to help you reflect on yourself and your situation, or through the process of creating you may find relief and understanding of your experience. I do not interpret or Expressive Arts Therapy is an art-based therapy approach which encourages a person to engage through creativity. I integrate all of the creative modalities with a mindful and Focusing oriented approach in the therapeutic process. My passion is to provide a sacred space for creative soul-making in the service of health, integrity, and inner peace. I am a Licensed Mental Health Counselor in MA, a Certified Expressive Therapist and Focusing Oriented Therapist. My education includes Masters in Expressive Therapies from Lesley University, Cambridge, MA and in Clinical Psychology from Jussieu-Censier, France. My studio/office is located in Medford, MA. I accept several health insurances and can be reached at 781-874-0709.

For the past 20 years Barbra has provided therapy to youth, adults and families. She draws from her experience as a Marriage and Family Therapist and Clinical Art Therapist to help youth, adults and families work through difficulties in their lives. She has extensive experience working in clinics, hospitals, schools and at the Family Cour of St. Louis County. Living abroad at different times in her life has enriched Barbra's ability to relate to people with varied backgrounds. Barbra trained as a clinical Art Therapist at Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles. Though especially effective with children and teens, art expression is helpful and rewarding at any age, offering a novel approach to recognizing and understanding feelings without requiring any artistic skill. Barbra also offers groups on social skills, anxiety and eating disorders for children and teens.

Description of Practice	Deborah has been the staff Art Therapist for the Psychology and Religion Program at St. Louis Behavioral Medicine Institute since 1999, and has maintained a private practice in art therapy and counseling with adults for the past 7 years. Deborah's psychotherapy practice is based primarily in the depth psychology of Carl Jung, which understands image, metaphor and symbol as expressions of the psyche's drive for wholeness. Dreams and imagery give us clues for conflict resolution and for healing, and following their guide we discover our most precious individuality. Combining talk therapy and work with image, Deborah deeply honors the inner direction of each client as they struggle to understand their relationships and their lives. In her intensive work with Catholic religious, she is versed in mindfulness, addictions, anxiety, depression, weight management, and CBT. Deborah is in a training program to become a Jungian psychoanalyst at the Jung Institute of Chicago.

Description of Practice	Women struggling with grief, relationships, depression will find that Art Therapy builds insight, increases self-esteem, heightens objectivity, providing the client with an alternative to traditional therapy. Tap into your creative self. Enlist its strength and ability to identify what has kept you stuck, and held back from achieving personal goals. Art Therapy will help you to feel less depressed, more motivated to make changes, and confident to enhance a life well lived.. No prior art experience is necessary. An open heart and mind to take creative risks in a non-judgmental environment will provide the basis for the healing to begin. A variety of materials may be utilized in and outside of sessions, beginning with but not limited to, drawing, painting, and sculpting. Clients are encouraged to use traditional and non-traditional materials, and to use writing/journaling as a partner in the creative process. Clients may benefit from individual and/or group sessions.

Description of Practice	Specialize in working with girls ages 5-21 who are suffering with anxiety, depression, low self-esteem, shutting down and acting out behaviors. I am passionate about helping children and teens get out of their "I'm not good enough" thinking and back into their playful heart where their strengths and capabilities live. I use art as a tool to connect to my clients, so they can find the words to help them move forward. I use creative problem solving techniques to help clients speak about their problems rather than shut down, use words rather than act out and ultimately feel more confident and connected.

Description of Practice	Hearts & Crafts Grief Counseling was founded in 1994 by Board Certified Art Therapist Laura Hudson. It is a non-profit organization that helps children, teens, and adults who have lost a loved one or are living with a serious illness. It provides individual counseling, support groups, and special events including a weekend camp called Camp Grief Busters. It is located in a cozy carriage house to create a safe home away from home. Hearts & Crafts Counseling is the skilled partnership of Laura Hudson, a board certified art therapist and Terry DeBrule, a licensed clinical social worker. Together, we provide a unique blend of professionalism and true caring to all those who enter the Carriage House. Art therapy and traditional psychotherapy are both offered. We are a 501-C3 so donations are greatly appreciated and help us to keep our doors open to anyone who needs our services.

Description of Practice	I use verbal and non-verbal approaches in my counseling. Non-verbal approaches include the optional use of the Expressive Arts. The Expressive Arts include but are not limited to the use of paint, collage, clay, movement, music, journaling, and mixed media to EXPRESS, understand, and transform feelings. Previous art making experience is NOT necessary because expressive art-making is used as a very personal PROCESS for the exploration and expression of feelings, issues, and challenges NOT for creating a PRODUCT for public exhibition. I work with children and adults. I work with children with special needs and Autism. The focus of my work is with children who are physically, emotionally, and cognitively challenged. Along with Expressive Art Therapy, I also use Play Therapy in my work with children. My work also includes working with adults who have experienced the death of a loved one or are experiencing significant loss or change.

Description of Practice	Are you feeling overwhelmed by anxiety? Unclear about the direction of your life? Struggling with past traumas? Feeling depressed? Having difficulty in relationships? Unsure about how to make changes in your life? Want to create and live a more fulfilling life? With compassion and attention to the uniqueness of you and your situation, I will work with you to create a therapeutic environment that is most helpful to you. At times, words alone may not be enough to express what one is feeling. I have the ability to integrate different modalities (art, meditation, dreams, breathing techniques, yoga poses) into treatment to provide other avenues of expression of feelings and somatic experiences. My experience includes working with clients of all ages struggling with a variety of issues such as trauma, anxiety, depression, grief and loss,addictions, sexual abuse, divorce, medical illnesses (cancer), and relationship issues.

VISIT OUR WEBSITE. Learn how we help MEND COMMUNICATION AND RELATIONSHIP BREAKDOWNS/ treat INTERPERSONAL ISSUES. Every major therapeutic technique can be translated, in part, to a corresponding art therapy technique. For appropriately selected individuals, couples, and families with certain problems, using adjunctive art therapy can be of immense benefit. Art therapy uses the creative process as a key form of expression for children, adolescents, and adults with emotional, mental, or physical distress. Via verbal and non-verbal modes, art therapy helps to resolve personal and interpersonal issues.

Description of Practice	I use an eclectic approach, with an emphasis on cognitive-behavioral models combined with art therapy and sand play therapy as appropriate for the individual (for all ages that I see). I try to find a balance between therapy that focuses on empathy and listening, with therapy that uses gentle coaching and specific behavioral suggestions. The issues that I have primary expertise and experience in include: substance abuse and other addictions, co-dependency, parenting, depression, anxiety, anger, and post-traumatic stress disorder. I work with children age eight and above, adolescents, and adults. I have experience and am comfortable working with people with developmental disabilities and autistic spectrum disorders. My background in the substance abuse/addictions field is very useful in working with parents who are struggling to set limits with their children, as well as others who are challenged to learn how to stop enabling important people in their lives. Art therapy is a very useful tool for many people. It provides a way to work around defenses effectively, and to integrate right-brain and left-brain learning, thus opening the way to more lasting change. The creative process itself can be healing and provides a positive way to deal with stress. Defining oneself as "an artist" is not necessary for art therapy to be effective.

Short received a Masters in Art Therapy from Marylhurst University in 1999 and is a nationally registered and board certified Art Therapist (ATR-BC) with the Art Therapy Credentials Board, as well as a member of the American Art Therapy Association. Short's true passion is supporting others. Since 1997, she has had work experiences using the expressive arts in medical, outpatient, inpatient, juvenile justice, school-based settings and with at-risk youth. Short has experience in working with groups, couples, families and individuals. Her educational and clinical background specializes in Art Therapy, although Short has also been trained in traditional verbal methodologies, Family Therapy, Sand Tray Therapy and PhotoTherapy. In 2006 Short co-founded the 100th Monkey Studio, a community open art studio and gallery. In this space Short saw her dream become real, providing the community, individuals of all ages and backgrounds, a place to engage in the expressive arts on many levels. It is the studios mission to support artists in their unique journey of using art as a means of individual self-expression. The 100th Monkey Studio is also dedicated to providing the community with art resources while also being a creative place to visit and view art.

Description of Practice	I am a board certified - registered art psychotherapist and a licensed professional counselor, in private practice since 1980. As a painter and pianist, self-expression through the arts has always been a part of my life. In my practice I strive to help others actualize their goals through the combined use of art and words. I incorporate psychodynamic art psychotherapy, sand play and verbal therapy within individual and group therapy sessions, and also supervise professionals for their credentials. I recently co-authored Finding Your Voice Through Art Therapy: A Creative Workbook For Dealing With Your Eating Disorder (Gurze Books, ©2010), which supports self-expression outside the therapy session. I specialize in treating eating disorders, trauma/dissociation, post traumatic stress disorder, depression, and anxiety in adolescent and adult populations. Most importantly, I am passionate about the field of art psychotherapy and believe that creative expression is a healing instrument available to all! My canine co-therapist Colin, a Bichon Havanese, is also a source of comfort and healing to those individuals in my practice.
